Free Christian Science Recreation Projects To Be Presented Tonight

"Christian Science: A Practical Religion" is the title of a free lecture to be delivered in Point Loma high school auditorium, Sunday, March 17, at 3 o'clock, by Rev. Irving C. Tomlinson, C.S.B. This lecture has been arranged for by the Ocean Beach branch of The Mother Church, located on the corner of Santa Monica and Cable Sts. Mr. Tomlinson, who is a member of the Board of Lectureship of The First Church of Christ Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, spoke also at Chula Vista last Tuesday evening, choosing for the subject of his lecture there "Christian Science: Its Advantages Free to All."

The street railway company has very kindly arranged bus service to the auditorium from Ocean Beach Junction or points on Voltaire, returning to the Junction after the lecture.

Those who like printed copies of the lecture will be glad to know that Mr. Tomlinson's talk will be printed in full, to be on sale outside the auditorium and at the junction Sunday afternoon, and may also be had in the regular edition of March 22 of The Ocean Beach News.

FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Members of Old Ironsides troop 29, Boy Scouts, and the Point Loma R. O. T. C. bore the body of their late comrade, Edgar I. Batt, to its last resting place in Mt. Hope cemetery, Saturday, following services at the Bonham Brothers' chapel. The Rev. W. S. Dunn conducted the service amid a profusion of flowers. A member of the Scouts played taps at the grave.

Edgar, 14, was a native of Colorado and came here with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Batt of 4747 Nagara ave., 10 years ago. He was a student at Point Loma High school and an acting corporal of the R. O. T. C. He was also a member of scout troop 29. His death was due to injuries when he was struck by an auto on El Cajon Blvd., Wednesday evening, dying in Mercy hospital Thursday morning, March 7th.

Besides his parents he is survived by two sisters, Esther and Lenora Batt.

WELL KNOWN POLICE OFFICER SHOTS SELF

Funeral services for Charles M. Powell, age 34, local police officer, were held Tuesday morning at Ben-bough's funeral chapel, Rev. John B. Osborn officiating.

Powell was well known at the beaches, having been on the police force of this district for several years. After coming from duty Saturday night he is reported to have been drinking, quarreled with his wife at their home, 1437 "E" street. He fired a shot at Mrs. Powell, which only slightly injured her, however, it is said she fainted, and Powell believing he had killed her, then turned the gun on himself.

Citizens of Point Loma and the beaches who are interested in the welfare of young people and especially in their physical, social and moral development are urged to attend a mass meeting at the Russ auditorium, San Diego High school, Friday evening, March 15 at eight o'clock. The meeting will be addressed by L. Deming Tilton, State Planning Commissioner, who has just returned from Washington, D. C., and will bring the latest word about the extent to which the State and Federal governments will be able and willing to furnish supplies, materials, and labor for recreational projects needed by local communities.

Residents of the Point Loma area have been keenly aware of the utter lack of physical education and social center facilities at Point Loma High school. In rainy weather students must be herded in basement corridors; there are only about a third enough shower and locker rooms for the girls; and there is no social hall for school dances, parties, and like entertainments. While the outdoor facilities for physical education are being improved greatly, there is still desperate need of adequate indoor play areas.

The San Diego Citizens Recreational Council has been very fortunate, thru the good offices of Supervisor Ed Hastings, to secure the services of the man who is in a position to help San Diegans achieve these worthy aims. Every friend of youth, whether or not he or she has children in the public schools, should come to hear Mr. Tilton Friday evening. Preceding the meeting the Fathers' Council of the Parent-Teachers association is sponsoring a pot-luck dinner in the cafeteria of the San Diego High school, reservations for which should be made thru the presidents of the various PTA units.

Grand Opera at Savoy March 21 and 22

Members of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Symphony orchestra will be heard here in operatic performances at the Savoy theater, March 21 and 22. It means that the orchestral scores of not only "Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria Rusticana" will be played with the spirit, color and passion they demand, but also that the older and lighter, but none the less effective, instrumentation in Verdi's "Il Trovatore" will receive adequate and finished presentation.

A well known critic says that we of today are apt to think of the orchestration in "Il Trovatore" as more or less pallid and essentially mild. But when it is performed by efficient, skilled musicians, and directed by a conductor who knows the Verdi style and traditions, it becomes an eloquent and illuminating commentary on the opera's drama.

The men from the Philharmonic will play the music with the finesse and the finish it demands, and under the leadership of such an experienced man as Maestro Conti, readings which reveal the full worth and power of the scores should be assured. Conti is the son of the well known conductor, who for many years was first orchestra director of the Boston Grand Opera company and who was a man of fine and widely recognized ability. The son is declared a worthy "chip of the old block" and it will be interesting to watch and study his capabilities when he comes with the Pacific opera organization next week.

With such principals as Paola Marconi, the young La Scala tenor; Hazel Hayes, soprano; Olga Dane, contralto; Rudolfo Hoyes, baritone, and Alfonso Pedros, bass—all of whom are experienced opera singers—and with a chorus made up of fresh, young, finely-trained American voices, with a ballet of good-looking dancers, and with the players from the Philharmonic under the leadership of Conti—with such an organization, opera of far more than customary value would seem to be in store for San Diego music lovers.

OCEAN BEACH POLICE RIGHT ON THE JOB

Last Sunday some one seeing smoke pouring out of the side of the unoccupied well built two room office at the corner of Bermuda and Guizot called up the Ocean Beach police. Arriving at the scene the police found three boys, who live in the same block, had taken possession, moving in a stove, furniture, mattress, bedding, etc.

Unable to open the door from the outside, the boys tore off boards from one of the windows (which had been boarded up to protect the glass) they fastened a hinge on a couple of the boards to gain easy entrance. Inside they cut (or smashed) a hole through the plaster board and outside wall for a stove pipe, tore out a ventilator in the ceiling, bored several holes through the walls and door (which the police called "Peek holes") and started to cut a trap door through the floor.

One of the boys jumped through the window when he saw the police officer, the other two were caught but as the owner was away at the time no warrant was issued for their arrest.

The timely arrival of the police prevented the building from burning down as the wall back of the stove was scorched.

The owner certainly wishes to thank the police officer on duty for his prompt action, also the party who called the police station.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and the associates of our son, Edgar, for their sympathy and extreme kindness and many floral offerings. Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Batt, Esther and Lenora Batt.

Judge: Margaret E. Smith.
Clerks: Elnora C. Hughes, Francis Stockton.

Forum Subject Tuesday Utilities Ownership

Gilmore Tillman, assistant city attorney of San Diego, will be the speaker at the Town Forum in the Ocean Beach school auditorium next Tuesday evening, March 19th. His subject will be public utilities and public ownership of the same. This talk will present the opposite side on the question that was given at the Forum of March 5th, when G. H. P. Dellman spoke favoring private ownership of utilities.

The Forum opens at 7:30 and closes at 9 p. m.

There is no charge whatsoever and all citizens interested in better governmental management are invited to attend.

KIWANIS HOLDS GALA LADIES NIGHT PROGRAM

Tuesday evening the members of Ocean Beach Kiwanis club entertained their wives at a highly satisfactory chicken dinner at the Loma Tavern. Myron Insko was chairman of the evening's program. He first gave a short take-off on the history and activities of members present.

The main feature of the program was the versatile entertainment by A. W. Brewer, member of the San Diego Kiwanis club and manager of the men's social service department of the San Diego Salvation Army. Mr. Brewer is a musician of considerable ability and with his songs and musical skits gave the members a pleasant and enjoyable hour. As a pianist he could bring from the piano soft and lilting music of the birds and brooks or the thunderous noise of a mountain storm as he did in the Alpine storm, one of his selections. For the concluding number a linen sheet was placed over the front of the piano and the player blindfolded. With these handicaps it was no trouble for him to play as well as many people can do with years of practice and the music before their eyes.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Clark, relatives of the Insko's from Iowa, were guests for the evening.

MEN TO BE IN CHARGE OF CARD PARTY AND DANCE

The men of the Sacred Heart church will give their annual St. Patrick's Day entertainment and card party on Saturday evening, March 16, at the Women's clubhouse. The entertainment will be in charge of Miss Elisa Terhaggen of San Diego, who will present a class of her talented pupils in song and dance. The entertainment will begin at 8 o'clock sharp. Cards will follow. Prizes and refreshments will be extra good. The door prize will be a special feature. A valuable kitchen stove will also be disposed of.

The committee in charge are James O'Connor, Thomas Kyle, John McCaffrey, Bernard Walsh, Paul Burrows, Cyril Hebert, Emmett Whaling, George Friel, Charles Clark and John Linnan.

SERA DANCES AT OCEAN BEACH

Community dances will be held every Monday night for adults under the sponsorship of the SERA recreation project of the city playgrounds, at the Ocean Beach grammar school auditorium from 7 to 9. Tonight will be for adults also, but the following Friday inaugurates dances for the students and will be held each Friday thereafter under the same sponsorship in cooperation with the PTA.

PTA CAKE SALE MARCH 22

Members of Ocean Beach PTA will hold a cake baking contest next week with the cakes baked according to certain recipes which may be obtained from the PTA president, Mrs. J. W. McCausland, or at the Ocean Beach News office.

The cakes will be on display at the Ocean Beach Hardware store, March 22, judged for prizes and then sold.

Old Members School Board Are Endorsed

Members of Ocean Beach chamber of commerce in regular meeting Monday evening endorsed the move of the Ocean Beach Kiwanis club in their efforts to have additional recreational facilities added at the Ocean Beach school. The projects sought at this time being an additional tennis court, a hand ball court and the cementing and permanent marking of all these courts.

Letters were read from the San Diego Recreational council seeking support of a cooperative recreation center at Point Loma high school, to be sought from state and federal relief funds. This move for recreational improvement was considered favorably and the cooperation asked for was voted unanimously.

A letter was read from Senator Ed Fletcher, requesting guidance in regard to the wishes of local people pertaining to Mission Bay and the proposed agricultural fair grounds in this section.

A vote of the organization showed the majority favored a race track at this proposed agricultural fair, but a unanimous negative vote as regards a majority bond issue for raising funds and a negative vote as to the county supervisors paying any deficit of sinking fund or interest.

In a secret ballot for or against assembly bill No. 428, the majority did not favor the support of this bill. There was considerable discussion before a vote was taken by the members. This bill relates to the appointment of a local committee of five to have supervision over Mission Bay State Park, with the same powers it is said as the California State Park Commission now has over all state parks.

A motion was made and carried that the organization endorse the present members of the city school board who are running for re-election in the primary of March 26.

A committee was appointed to consult with mayoralty candidates in regard to their attitude of the Beaches and North Shore generally.

CALIFORNIA PUBLIC SCHOOL PLANS ANNOUNCED

Plans for the Ocean Beach school observance of California Public Schools week, April 7 to 12, 1935, were announced today at the local school. The keynote of the week's program will be "Your School At Work," with the regular day to day school educative process shown by room demonstrations and an open program in the school auditorium. The room demonstrations will show modern methods in teaching arithmetic, reading, spelling, language and social science.

Two additional high-lights of the week will be the community-wide Public Schools week meeting directed by the Point Loma Masonic lodge, and the Third Annual Nature Day.

The Public Schools Week meeting will be held in the school auditorium on Wednesday, April 10, at 7:30 p. m. An outstanding speaker will be provided and an unusually fine meeting is assured.

The Third Annual Nature Day will be held Friday afternoon, April 12 on the school playgrounds and in the auditorium. In line with previous Nature Days, preparations are being made for an attendance of from five to six hundred visitors.

CURRENT EVENTS PASS IN REVIEW

ADMINISTRATION FORCES IN DEADLOCK WITH LABOR ON WORK RELIEF BILL.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

DETERMINED not to accept the McCarran-Federation of Labor prevailing wage amendment, the administration forces in the senate sent the work relief bill back to the committee. What will happen now to the President's big program is problematical. Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, one of the administration men, declared the measure had met its death.

Insisting he was expressing his own belief and not talking for the President, Byrnes said, "There is no prospect of reviving the works program and 'The committee probably will do nothing about it.'"

"The President stated that if the McCarran amendment were adopted he would not sign the bill," Byrnes said. "The senate adopted it, therefore, so far as the works part is concerned, the bill is gone."

He expressed the thought the committee would report out an appropriation of $880,000,000 or $1,880,000,000 to carry out the present relief program for six months or a year.

The general opinion in Washington seemed to be that the latter part of Byrnes' statement was correct, and that the committee would delay reporting the public works part of the bill until the states and municipalities which would largely benefit from it could bring pressure to bear on their senators.

Adoption of the McCarran amendment by the senate was brought about only after a hard fight and by means of a rather tricky shifting of pairs in which Huey Long took a leading part. It won by a margin of one vote, whereupon Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, moved that the bill be sent back to the committee. This was done. Senator Glass expressing the hope that the committee would report out a bill "that will not be quite so controversial."

Senator Long, who loses no opportunity to pester the administration and to display his political shrewdness, has started a movement for the specification of $2,500,000,000 of the work relief measure's total for the purpose of highway construction. Highway commissions in every state were asked by him to endorse this plan. Long said he had discussed it with some other senators and that they liked it.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT paid a short visit to his home in Hyde Park, N. Y., and from there went to New England, especially to see his son, Franklin, Jr., initiated into the exclusive Harvard Fly club at Harvard university. In order that he might keep in close touch with Washington, one of his secretaries, Mr. McIntyre, maintained an office at Poughkeepsie, near Hyde Park, and another, Mr. Easley, remained at the White House.

It was understood that during the trip the President was preparing a message to congress recommending that the present government policy of ocean mail contracts be supplanted by direct subsidy grants to American steamship lines. His decision in favor of this quite radical change has been influenced by the report of a committee of experts that has been studying the question. Probably the proposition will meet with opposition from many congressmen and senators who are not from seaboard states.

FEDERAL JUDGE W. I. GRUBB of Alabama gave the New Deal a sharp rap that threatens the great electric power development in the Tennessee valley. He ruled that the Tennessee Valley Authority has no legal authority to dispose of surplus power generated at hydro-electric plants on the Tennessee river. The administration is depending on this enterprise to bring about the lowering of private power plant rates, and it was believed there would be an immediate appeal from the decision.

In Washington especial note was taken of the fact that Judge Grubb made permanent an injunction restraining 14 north Alabama cities and towns from negotiating with the Public Works administration for loans to build electric distribution systems. There was speculation as to what effect, if any, this might have nationally on PWA's policy of giving financial encouragement to municipal power developments.

CELEBRATING the seventeenth anniversary of the establishment of its army of 900,000 men, Soviet Russia renewed its defiance of "imperialistic" nations. All over the country there were fetes, and the speakers took occasion not only to glorify the Red warriors but also to attack Germany and Japan. Karl Radek, one of the chief spokesmen for the Soviet government, wrote in Izvestia:

"We cannot fold our hands when we know that the imperialists plan to attack us. Raging imperialistic cliques to the east and west of us are openly proclaiming programs of war against us."

In connection with the celebration figures were published showing that, in addition to the army, there are 13,000,000 civilians who are now members of a nation-wide organization for chemical and air defense; 3,000,000 volunteer automobile drivers; 720,000 expert civilian marksmen; and nearly half a million trained parachute jumpers as well as tens of thousands of glider pilots.

MUSSOLINI has sent 5,000 more Italian troops to east Africa, making 10,000 that have been dispatched for the possible war with the empire of Ethiopia. With the latest contingent went Gen. Rodolfo Graziani, who will be in command of the expeditionary army. The soldiers were given a fine send-off at Naples, Crown Prince Humbert being present.

A spokesman for the government said the negotiations with Emperor Haile Selassie were progressing slowly and very badly, and he was pessimistic as to the outcome. Cynical observers of the proceedings do not believe Mussolini is especially eager to avoid conflict with Ethiopia. Pointing to the well-known fact that Italy wishes to expand its territory to accommodate its people, they predict a movement comparable to that of Japan in Manchuria, justified by much the same arguments used by the Japanese.

POSSIBILITIES of a merger of Democrats with Republicans in fighting for repeal of the "pink slip" or income tax publicity section of the 1934 revenue act was seen as Representative Bell, Missouri, pleaded for immediate passage of his bill eliminating the publicity provision.

"Not only is there fear on the part of the people of the country on account of gangsters and racketeers," Bell asserted "but there also is concern among business men, because their competitors will have the opportunity of nosing into their secret files."

Bell added that his bill would leave intact the features of the 1926 Revenue act which permitted house and senate committees or any government official, upon order of the President, to have a copy of any income tax return that might be filed.

A statement from Raymond Pitcairn, national chairman of the Sentinels of the Republic, called upon all income tax payers to withhold filing their returns until March 15, to give Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and revenue department officials time to appear before congressional committees and to give congress an opportunity to repeal the law. Pitcairn also challenged Senator LaFollette, sponsor of the income publicity move, to a national radio debate. LaFollette ignored the challenge.

VICTOR A. CHRISTGAU, demoted from his position of second ranking officer of the AAA in the recent shake-up which involved several alleged radicals, resigned in protest. Chester D. Davis, administrator, had not accepted the resignation and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace was attempting to persuade Christgau to change his mind.

Wallace hinted that there had been differences between Christgau and A. H. Lauterbach, chief of the AAA dairy section, over the milk policy. A protégé of Undersecretary Rexford Guy Tugwell, Christgau was also supposed to have encountered "friction" with other members of the department. This gave rise to new rumors that Brain Truster Tugwell will resign before his influence in the AAA is too severely curtailed by the demotion and ouster of his conferees.

Meanwhile amendments to the Agricultural Adjustment act were declared to conceal dangerous, arbitrary and autocratic powers over farmers, manufacturers and distributors of farm products, by the legislative committee of the agricultural industries conference in Washington. The committee cited the provision that the AAA may require that a licensed processor purchase only from those who sign contracts. It charges that the amendments make no provision for the farmer to express himself in the matter of licenses, but contain provisions for price control, markets, production and purchasing. Through indirect restriction of the farmer's market, these provisions are equivalent to a licensing of the farmer, according to the committee. "The entire economic life of communities could be directed from Washington," the committee said.

D. F. E. TOWNSEND of California, whose pension plan for the aged has gained the support of many thousands of thoughtless citizens, went before the senate finance committee and tried to explain how the government could get out of its economic troubles by paying $200 monthly pensions to all persons over sixty, provided each one must spend his $200 for commodities or services within the country each month. The senators didn't treat the proposition with much seriousness.

BREAKING the tenth commandment, Alexander Frederick Churchill Sim of Cookham Dean, Berkshire, coveted the "perfect" serving maid of his neighbor, Herbert Mercer Stretch, and enticed her away from him. For this the civil court fined Sim $125. It assessed him another $1,250 for asserting in a telegram that Stretch borrowed money from the maid, Edith Saville.

BRUNO RICHARD HAUPTMANN escaped the electric chair at least temporarily when a writ of error filed by defense attorneys earned him a stay of the execution sentence which was to be carried out at Trenton, N. J., March 18. The Bronx carpenter's life is safe at least until September or October, since a further appeal can be made to the court of pardons if the court of errors and appeals fails to uphold the writ. Lloyd C. Fisher and Frederick A. Pope presented the appeal after a battle with Chief Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly, who subsequently threatened that either he or Fisher would have to withdraw from the Hauptmann defense. The hearing will probably take place at the next session of the court, which begins May 21.

ON THE heels of the Supreme court's gold ruling, former President Herbert Hoover demanded re-establishment of the gold standard in the United States as the only way "to restore confidence in our currency." This could only be done by making the dollar immediately convertible at the present 59 cents of gold—the modern method of specie paying.

The only living ex-President said that such action would put more of the 12,000,000 unemployed men back to work than any other step. The United States should take the lead in returning to the standard, he said, declaring that, "There is no need to wait on foreign nations before we re-establish the gold standard and restore confidence in our currency. They would be bound to follow some time. They are more afraid of our doing just this than they are of any American 'managed currency.'"

TWO more years of the NRA, with clarification of policies, more effective enforcement of codes and the granting of "unquestioned power" to the federal government, were urged by the President in a message to congress.

The national recovery act terminates June 16 this year. "Abandonment would be unthinkable," he said, naming the act as "the biggest factor in giving re-employment to approximately 4,000,000 people."

He said congress must maintain the fundamental principles of the act to establish at least a minimum fair trade practice and labor relations standard, pleading that child labor must stay out and that fixing of wages and hours was practical and necessary.

Answering recent protests of labor, he said: "The rights of employees freely to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining should be fully protected."

He urged more strict application of anti-trust laws, condemned monopolies and private price fixing, opposed hindrances to fair competition, and proposed further protection of small enterprises against discrimination and oppression.

His suggestions, if adopted, would keep code violators from behind the bars. "The way to enforce laws, codes and regulations relating to industrial practices is not to seek to put people in jail," he said.

Admitting some mistakes, the President was well satisfied that the NRA had done a good job considering its short existence.

"Only carping critics and those who seek political advantage and the right again to indulge in unfair practices or exploitation of labor or consumers deliberately seek to quarrel over the obvious fact that a great code of law, of order and of decent business cannot be created in a day or a year," Mr. Roosevelt declared.

All details of the legislation were left to congress. While this is in progress, the senate finance committee proposes to conduct the Nye-McCarran investigation of the NRA administration and codes. The judiciary subcommittee reported no funds available, but the inquiry, which has the President's approval, will be attempted without money.

THIRTY-ONE inmates shot and killed a guard in a spectacular break from the Oklahoma state prison at McAlester, the only male penal institution administered by a woman warden. Thirteen were captured shortly afterward and a man-hunt is on for the others. The fugitives used two guns which had been smuggled to them, forced a "trust" turnkey to open up for them, corralled 20 visitors in the visitors' room and, using them for a shield, made their escape. Her prison already the subject of investigation into its moral and managerial standards, the warden, Mrs. G. A. "Mother" Waters, was ordered replaced by a man, Gov. E. W. Marland declaring that a woman "just can't manage" a prison. Defiantly, she refused to clear out until completed investigations vindicated her.

MORE than 100 men were reported killed or wounded in a skirmish in the "demilitarized" zone which lies between Manchukuo and China north of Tientsin. The clash was between the recently formed Peace Preservation corps and the Lwanchow militia. The Peace Preservation corps, which has the approval of the Chinese government, was receiving money and arms from the Japanese. It was alleged. The militia is supported by local Chinese interests. While the battle was raging, Wang Ching-wei, premier of the Chinese Nationalist government, and Koki Hirota, Japanese foreign minister, expressed themselves as desirous of peace between the two nations.

Golden Gate Bridge Rapidly Rising

A new and spectacular landmark has commenced to take form at San Francisco's harbor entrance. It is the south tower of the Golden Gate bridge that, with its twin on the Marin side of the Golden Gate, will support the world's greatest suspension span. Already the first sections of tower steel, some of the units of which weigh 70 tons, have been erected and approximately 1,500 tons of fabricated material are on the loading platform on the south pier fender in readiness to be erected. Photograph shows the south tower of the Golden Gate bridge. In the distance can be seen the north tower on the Marin side.

Joseph George, aged seven, tells grandma, Mrs. Bertha O'Brien, aged fifty-one, of Chicago, how much he loves her and how grateful he is for what she did. Grandma forgets the pain of a broken arm, a broken shoulder and several broken ribs, and is very happy. When a truck thundered down on the lad, Mrs. O'Brien, forgetting herself, leaped out, thrust him from the path of death and was struck herself. The boy emerged with a turned ankle and a skinned face.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

THE BOLDNESS OF TERROR THE GOSHAWK

For peace and safety pray beware. And never take a foolish dare.

NEVER in his life had Reddy Fox felt more uncomfortable than he did as he stole up through the Old Orchard toward Farmer Brown's henyard in broad daylight. Terror the Goshawk had dared him to visit the henyard and steal a hen while Farmer Brown was about. All the way there Reddy hoped that Farmer Brown would not be about. He hoped that no one would be about. He wished with all his heart that he had kept his tongue still when he had met Terror, and so have avoided this unpleasant scrape.

The truth is, Reddy didn't dare visit that henyard when Farmer Brown or Farmer Brown's Boy was about. He knew that he wouldn't dare go beyond the old stone wall on the edge of the Old Orchard if he should find that anyone was near that henyard. So he hoped and hoped that when he got there the way would be clear, for he knew that Terror the Goshawk was sitting in the top of a tall tree where he could watch all that went on.

When Reddy reached the old stone wall on the edge of the Old Orchard and peeped over, his heart sank, for Farmer Brown himself was in the henyard feeding the hens. Reddy stopped right where he was. Nothing could have induced him to go a step nearer. "Anyways," muttered Reddy to himself, "Terror won't dare go any nearer, and so we'll be even. No one would dare visit that henyard and steal a hen right under Farmer Brown's nose. No one is bold enough to do a thing like that."

Reddy looked back to where Terror the Goshawk was sitting. Suddenly Terror spread his great wings and shot out from that tree straight toward Reddy. Reddy could not but admire the speed with which he flew. Straight over the Old Orchard he came, and swooping down just above Reddy's head, he cried, "Coward!" and then shot up into the air and over Farmer Brown's henyard. There he made a little circle and then shot down like a thunderbolt, seizing a hen in his great claws only a few feet from where Farmer Brown was standing. Before Farmer Brown could move he was in the air again carrying away that fat hen. Farmer Brown yelled. All the hens screamed and raced for the henhouse. Terror paid no attention either to Farmer Brown or the frightened hens. Once more he flew low just over Reddy's head and once more cried, "Coward!" then swiftly disappeared over in the Green Forest. He had made good his dare.

As for Reddy Fox, he sneaked away toward the Old Pasture. In his heart he admired the boldness of Terror the Goshawk, but he hated him more than ever, and that hate grew as he thought of the fine breakfast Terror was enjoying while he himself could find nothing to put in his empty stomach.

A MIRACLE

By ANNE CAMPBELL

I SAW a miracle from my own door, Spreading its glamour on my patch of sky. Giving me hope and bringing me once more A dream that I supposed had passed me by.

After the rain, the darkness, and the fear, After the lightning's flash, the tempest's moan, I read a message, comforting and dear. That rainbow seemed to shine for me alone!

It was as if God's finger wrote for me, Who am so seldom far from my home place: "Beauty will find you, and felicity, And after suffering, the rainbow's grace."

The Penny Post

The Penny Post was an institution transplanted from London by Benjamin Franklin soon after he was appointed one of the two deputy postmasters for the Colonies in 1753, and, like its London counterpart, had grown up in the post office but, strictly speaking, was not a government function. The main difference between the two was that in London the profits from the local post were assigned to a court favorite, while in America they were the perquisites of the individual postmasters or the carriers whom the latter might appoint.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I bought a home in the country from a real estate agent who told me it was a two-story house with modern improvements. When I went to see it I discovered it didn't have any improvements and there was no second floor at all. What did the agent mean when he said it was a two-story house?

Truly yours,

IMA SAPP.

Answer: The agent was right in telling you it was a two-story house. As you say all the rooms were on the ground floor, that is one story, and there aren't any improvements in the house, that's the other story.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a working man, earning about $3,000 a year. My wife made me buy an automobile. I keep an account, and I find the car costs me $1,200 a year to run. What shall I do?

Sincerely,

X. TRAPARTS.

Answer: Stop keeping an account.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a man of forty years of age. I met a woman my own age at a party last week. I took her home and on the way I told her that her teeth were like "stars." I have called her up on the telephone but she won't talk to me. What do you think is wrong?

Truly yours,

HEYM SINGLE.

Answer: You probably hit the nail on the head. You said her teeth were just like "stars" and she thinks you said that because they come out every night.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I read in the papers today about a man who was crazy about golf. While he was playing a game with his wife she talked all the time, which interfered with his game. It seems his ball landed in a bunker and he had a very difficult shot. His wife kept talking to him. He could not stand it any longer. As she was in the bunker with him he turned and hit her with his driving iron. He was arrested and sent to jail for six months. Do you think that is right?

Yours truly,

IMA PUTTER.

Answer: It seems to me the reason he got six months was not because he hit his wife, but, he hit his wife in a "bunker" with a "driving iron." There's the whole story in a nutshell. He used the wrong club.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Can you give me an example that

A GOOD baked ham that is rich in color, juicy and tender, is a main dish which is extremely popular.

Baked Ham.

Soak the ham in cold water overnight. Pour off this water and cover with water to which has been added two cups of sugar and three-fourths of a cup of vinegar to a 12-pound ham. Simmer gently until well done, which will require 25 minutes to the pound, counting the time after the water simmers. Do not boil, as that toughens the meat. Let the ham cool in its own liquor. This adds to the moisture as well as flavor. When cold skin the ham, rub with brown sugar and dry mustard and stick with cloves. Put into a hot oven to brown nicely.

Apples Stuffed With Sausage.

This makes a nice luncheon dish. Wash six good-sized apples—the tart kind—scoop out the apple, leaving a thick wall, taking all the apple possible. Chop the apple, mix with sausage meat, refill the apples, then bake until they are well done. This is a nice winter breakfast dish.

Stuffed Pork Tenderloin.

Slit the tenderloin the entire length. Brush the meat with salt, pepper, and a cut clove of garlic. In the cavity place parboiled carrot and celery of equal amounts. Wrap up and skewer or tie. Place in a baking dish to roast with layers of sliced onions and apples. Baste during the roasting and serve the onions and apples around the meat.

Luncheon Croquettes.

Take one cup of chopped cooked beef, one cup of canned corn, one-half cup of bread crumbs, one beaten egg and a little cream; if more moisture is needed. Make into croquettes after seasoning well, roll in crumbs, in egg, then crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Cream cheese softened with cream to the consistency for spreading to which a dozen of chopped candied cherries are added, makes most delicious sandwich filling.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

TRUE GHOST STORIES

By Famous People

Copyright by Public Ledger, Inc. WNU Service.

By IRVING BERLIN Famous Composer

ONLY the person who suffers from insomnia knows the ravages and terrors of the still night hours before the dawn of day.

Through the night lilting tunes and haunting melodies come to Irving Berlin, the famous composer; but sleep eludes him.

"Once during a hot summer night," Mr. Berlin related, "I was staying at a small Broadway hotel during the production of one of my first musical comedies.

"Tired out from the work of rehearsal, I could have fallen into a light sleep, but I was disturbed by the snoring of the man in the next room. I paced the floor. The snoring grew louder and louder. It was uncanny. At four o'clock it stopped, and I fell asleep for a few minutes, only to be awakened again by the regularity of the harsh notes. I slept by fits and starts.

"At six o'clock I remember I was awake.

"Frantically, I walked into the hall. The snoring man's door was open. I pushed aside the ventilating screen. An empty white-rock bottle caught my eye. I picked it up and, with one blow, brought it down with revenge upon the man's head. It shattered into hundreds of pieces. Blood trickled down the man's face. This was horrible.

"The next thing I knew a hand was grasping my arm. I could feel it, but could not see it. Was it the dead man's ghost? I tried hard to visualize it—was it the hand of a spirit detective?

"I reached up to push the hand away.

"Wake up," roared a bellboy, "who was tugging at my arm. You left a call for seven o'clock. Hope you had a nice night's sleep," he added, jauntily. "The man in the next room has complained that he dreamed he heard the noise of some one walking back and forth, back and forth, all night. Hope you didn't hear anything queer."

By JOAN CRAWFORD Motion Picture Actress

"SINCE childhood, I have been afraid of darkness. It is a fear which embodies nothing definite; but complete darkness terrifies me. Consequently, I always leave a dim light burning in the dressing room which opens from my bedroom," said Joan Crawford.

"A short time ago I had an amazing experience. One night at eleven o'clock this lamp flickered fitfully, almost going out completely and then burning again. I paid little attention to it, thinking something was wrong with the current. When the same thing happened the next night, at the same hours, eleven and twelve, I called in an electrician to test the wiring at the house, and of the lamp. Nothing wrong was found.

"On the third night we stayed home just to watch the lights. We turned them on all over the house, at eleven o'clock, but that in the dressing room behaved in the same peculiar fashion. I did not want to go out to dance or sing. On the fourth night, I moved from my room to one of the guest rooms, but because of my silly fear of the dark, which I know psychologists would say I should have overcome in my childhood, I left a light burning in the hall outside my room. At eleven o'clock that light began to flicker and a few minutes before twelve, it went out entirely. We were completely mystified.

"The next morning I received a wire from New York telling me that one of my oldest friends, a woman who had been very kind to me in the early days of my career, had died at midnight the night before.

"The telegram stated that four nights before my friend had been taken to the hospital for an emergency operation, that she had been operated on approximately at eleven o'clock, and that she had hovered between life and death during the period when I had trouble with my dressing room lamp.

"My lights went back to their usual steady behavior after that fourth night. I can't explain it. Perhaps there was something defective in the current—perhaps not."

The Mason and Dixie Line

The Mason and Dixie Line was the name given to the boundary between two American states, Maryland and Pennsylvania; the name was derived from the two English astronomers, Mason and Dixon, who surveyed the boundary in 1763.

This line formed part of the boundary between the states which continued to keep slaves and those which didn't. The result is that the phrase, "Mason and Dixie Line," is now widely used as meaning the whole of that boundary.—Answers Magazine.

Piano Invented in 1720

In its present form the piano was invented in 1720, but before it came the clavichord, the spinet, and the harpsichord. In all these the music was produced by quills which plucked the strings. It was not until the piano was designed that hammers were used to strike the strings.

CORK CURE

A young woman called at the house of a homeopathic doctor, and, after discussing on all the topics of the day, settled down to tell him of her ailments. Among other things, she said she was greatly alarmed by a "stinking feeling."

The doctor prepared a bottle of medicine and gave it to her, with directions as to how it should be taken. The woman began to talk, but at length, after many vain efforts on the doctor's part to get rid of her, she made for the door. She had just opened it, when she turned and said, "Oh, doctor, what shall I do if the medicine does not cure me?"

"Take the cork," he retorted. "They tell me that cork is good for a stinking feeling.—London Tit Bits.

The doctors say . . .

Use liquid treatment

Here is the soundest advice anyone can give on the subject of laxatives. It is based on medical opinion. We want you to have the benefit of this information no matter what laxative you may buy:

The secret of real relief from constipation is reduced dosage. You can't regulate the bowels unless you can regulate the help you give them. That is why doctors use a liquid laxative; the dose can be measured to a drop.

Avoid laxatives that you can't cut down in dosage; especially those that seem to require larger doses than when you began their use.

Under the doctor's care, you usually get a liquid laxative. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. Smaller and smaller doses—until you don't need any.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara—natural laxatives that form no habit.

HIGH PRICES vs. GOOD ADVICE

We are all perfectly aware that food stuffs are surely rising in price. Does this mean better times, or is it a profiteering plan promulgated by a few barons who hope to control the guide of progress? No such thing can succeed and warrant prosperity unless there is a channel of money flowing into the pocket of the consumer and this means the man who is needing a job—the wage earner, who is the bulwark of the nation's economic stability. Meat prices take the lead in cost increase. The packing industry last year had the largest volume of meat on record and operations are reported to have given a fair return, for the American people as a whole ate more beef in 1934 than in any previous year, the amount eaten per person averaged about 67 pounds—probably the greatest it has been for at least twenty years. The consumption of beef alone was 8,500,000,000 pounds in this country.

Prices in other lines of commodities, such as articles of wear, necessities for household furnishings, and the general list of merchandise have not gone up, but people must eat or starve. The poor as well as the rich, have to spend. If they can't pay the price they must take the consequences and too many are doing this right now—going without the necessities of life. High prices and the dole militates against comfort and happiness.

All the time we are proclaiming recovery, but the great need of the hour is for employment, investment, industrial expansion, but exorbitant taxation is a bitter enemy. A drastic cut in the cost of all government would be the greatest contribution to recovery, for the simple reason that billions now taken by the tax-gatherers would be spent by individuals and industries for a thousand purposes which would create jobs, purchasing power and new taxable wealth.

We seem to be fed up on "good advice" everywhere, but the appalling and perhaps pathetic need is the right power for putting it into practice. As Mark Twain said in his time, "we don't seem to be doing anything about it."

We have read in the newspapers of recent years, of some drastic forms of dictatorship in Europe and other foreign countries, and bemoaned the horrors put upon the people who have come under its rule, but today there is a form of dictatorship going on in Louisiana under Huey Long, that is enough to horrify any good citizen. United States, founded on a Constitutional program of Democracy has gone far afield in tolerating such a deviation from the good old Constitution of Jeffersonian principle. If such a thing should be allowed to spread to other states it will not be long before our freedom and independence will be taken away from us. We have seen enough of it already to express alarm. Already the factional fighting has spread from the political to the military in the southern state and the end is not yet. Congressman Jared Y. Sanders, jr., of Louisiana tells the House the "Asiatic dictatorship" in his State foreshadows a conflict over continuing democracy that will soon be fought throughout the United States.

Automobile buyers who go shopping around, never got so much car value for their money as at the present time. In 1929 only 54 per cent of the motoring whosale for less than $500; today we have 81 per cent. Three great producers of low-priced cars are given as leaders in the introduction of machinery that cuts down labor demand and makes workers "too slow" at 40. Thus, while it may be a bonanza for the car purchaser, yet labor seems to bear the brunt of savings. The world has to face a serious situation brought on by the machine age, and Federal legislation has a grave responsibility in adjusting this modern evolutionary state of labor affairs. Automobile manufacture is the leading industry today and with the technical needs for producing a perfect working mechanism that must go into the auto, special machinery must be used, which is also the most labor-saving—Producing the highest value and efficiency with the least outlay of man power or skill.

Next Sunday is St. Patrick's Day, in honor of the patron saint of Ireland. It is said that he was not an Irishman but that he was born an Englishman or was a Welshman though not by blood. His noble parents gave the lovable qualities he possessed; his father a Roman and his mother a Frenchwoman. March 17 is not St. Patrick's birthday anniversary as thousands think but the anniversary of his death. Nevertheless his great fame came from what he did for Ireland, not only by pontifical action, but also in the heart of the people of the "auld sod." For over 1500 years Ireland has been blessed by this influential man. Many are born and have died and been forgotten, but the memory of St. Patrick will live on through the ages. His staunch patriotic service and aid to fallen Ireland is emblematic of a life of courage and character. Let all remember the green leaf and wear it next Sunday.

Once more we are reminded of the Lenten season, and its divine lesson. Humanity needs the sentiment of this pre-Easter occasion to set in order the spiritual house. It is not a bad idea if the world at large gets the inclination of prayer, penitence and fasting, especially just now when the country is wavering over political opinions with an unrest of disposition molesting the mind. Lent should teach us the way to live and a preparation of soul in death. Creator whose power of spirit and communion is ever-lasting. The Lenten lesson should make us turn the searchlight on and take an inventory of the way we have lived. It will make a victorious Easter for us.

Just while Back East inhabitants are getting over the shivers of freezing storms, winds and heavy blockades of ice and snow, they are made the recipient of an earthquake shock, which for its greatness in scope, covered four of the leading and populous states. It is no longer considered that California is the only land of earthquakes. Late years there are seismic disturbances in most every part of the world. The back-east newspapers, which have devoted so much space at the expense of the Golden State, must agree with the old saying, "people who live in glass houses, should never throw stones."

THAT ST. PATRICK PROBLEM—HIS PLACE OF BIRTH

While endeavoring to write our St. Patrick's editorial this week we were doubtful about his nativity, which generally seems a question with no definite answer. Going to a friend whom we thought might know the answer, he gave us the following information, which while not definitely descriptive of the good saint, nevertheless refers to his family, and the section where apparently he was most interested.

At Kilrickill, Galway, a nursery was built by St. Patrick for his sister, Richella. At Fortaugh, County Cavan, he founded a temple for his eldest sister, Lupita. She was buried here. At Killeavy, County Cavan, a nursery built by St. Doneca, dedicated to Monena, a sister of St. Patrick. At Killosey, near Kildare, an abbey was founded by St. Patrick for his nephew St. Auxil.

WIDE VARIETY OF EXHIBITS AT FLOWER SHOW

With a group of exhibits, more varied than any in the 10 years of its existence, the National Mid-winter Flower show opened Thursday in Encinitas.

A bit of old California is caught in the displays, as one sees an old Padre designing pottery; and an old spinning wheel sitting in the corner of an early California ranch house.

Then there are the rare orchids, ferns, colorful cut flowers, begonias, palms, fish pools, rock gardens, cactus—in fact everything to delight the eye of the lover of beauty.

T. C. Spruit, manager, stated today that the show far surpasses any effort of the past. George Beech, president, looks for all attendance records to be shattered.

The program for the four days of the show is announced by Bill Niefeld, chairman as follows: Thursday, Encinitas Ranch Hands. Oceanside Carlsbad Union High School Orchestra.

Friday, Sweetwater Union High school Band. B.P.O. Elks orchestra. Saturday, Bonham Bros. Band, San Diego. Sunday, Oceanside Municipal band. Escondido Municipal band.

SAN DIEGO PRESS CLUB TO ENTERTAIN NEWSMEN

The newspaper fraternity of the city and county, represented by the San Diego Press Club, will be host to all visiting members of the newspaper profession during Exposition year, through an arrangement made by the club with the Exposition management.

Offer of the Press Club to assume the responsibility for reception and entertainment of visiting newspaper men was promptly accepted by the Exposition Board which realized the assignment was a natural one.

Financing of the program will be met by a series of outstanding entertainments, first of which is the Exposition ball at Hotel del Coronado Tuesday, March 26, to which the public is invited. Features will include two dance orchestras, and an elaborate floor show with headline talent participating.

SAVOLDI—LEWIS GIGANTIC MATCH RUSH FOR TICKETS

The long sought match between Jumping Joe Savoldi, former Notre Dame star and Ed Strangler Lewis, five times worlds champion, will head the attraction on the Pacific Coast for the week. The match will take place at the San Diego Coliseum on Tuesday night, according to wrestling promoter Linn Platner who signed the participants after much negotiation.

Lewis first ask that Savoldi be denied the use of his famous 'drop kick' hold but finally agreed to let Savoldi go thru when Joe agreed not to kick Lewis in the chin at any time, provided Lewis be restrained from using his headlock which is considered one of the most punishing of mat holds and is Ed's main stock in trade.

The match will be one of the first of the great international elimination matches. Those qualifying will be afforded an opportunity to enter the elimination which gets under way April 24. A world's championship is worth in nearly every instance a cool half million, the boys will be battling for top honors.

THE PRINTER WHO HELD THE GOLD CLAUSE SECRETS

Between the time the decision in the Gold Clause Cases was prepared and rendered, Clarence Edward Bright, manager of the Pearson Printing Office, Washington, D. C., held the Nation's important secret of who won that decision. Mr. Bright's firm, housed in an unpretentious building in the area between the Capitol and the White House, has been the printer of Supreme Court opinions for over three-quarters of a century. The Dred Scott decision of March 6, 1857, was mechanically prepared for issue there. No judicial secrets ever slip the lips of Mr. Bright.

His assistants compose the manuscripts in sections, but he personally sets the key part of the opinions and then assembles all the matter and continues in this manner until the opinions are ready to be made public by the Supreme Court.

Mr. Bright is a tall, erect man with gray hair, obliging in manner, but quick and incisive in his execution. He is fond of his trade as a printer and takes seriously his ethical relationship to the Judicial Branch of the Federal Government.

He has been a member of Albert Pike Consistory, Washington, D. C., for a quarter of a century.

JANUARY BEVERAGE TAX
IS $83,805.97

Sacramento, February 22—A sharp decline in beer and wine sales at the close of the holiday season is revealed from the beverage tax assessment roll for January, completed here today by the State Board of Equalization.

Last month's tax on beer and wine was based upon a total gallonage of 4,190,298.5, as contrasted with 5,322,930 gallons taxed in December. This marked a decrease of 1,132,631.5 gallons, or 21 percent.

Beverage taxes for January, computed at 2 cents per gallon, are announced by the Board as $83,805.97 as against $106,458.60 levied last month. Although this marks a decline of $22,652.63 in the State revenue from this source, it is $7,830.29 more than the amount of the beverage tax for January, 1934.

California beer and wine account for 94.7 percent of the total tax assessed. This preference for local products is found both in beer and wine sales since 92.5 percent of the beer sold in California was produced here. Imported wine was accountable for only one-half of one percent of the total beverage tax.

WARREN WALKER SCHOOL

A few of the students of the Warren-Walker school took interesting trips to the back country over the week end. In opening exercises, stories were told of what they did. Ruth Doggett went to the snow and played baseball and had a snow fight. Patricia Welch went to the back country with her father to engage in target practise. Freddie Kraft told about his trip to Cuyamaca mountains.

The students who proved to be the best gardeners last week received prizes. Hilary Blake and Jean Pope won pencil boxes. Peter Pinney and Freddie Kraft received double-barrelled air rifles.

Wednesday morning the kindergarten room gave a pleasant surprise in the form of a moving picture show of Peter Rabbit. They were assisted by Peter Pinney, Gloria Johnson and Joycelyn Watters.

We were glad to welcome another new student to our school. Gilbert Linley of Pacific Beach was enrolled Monday morning.

TEACHERS THROUOUT THE AGES

The fact that man moulds his own life does not presuppose that all down thru the years guides have not been sent into the world—GREAT TEACHERS—to sound again and again the note of the Ancient Wisdom.

By reviving the lives of these men and looking closely at the precepts set forth by them do we gain a new vision of The Path Eternal to the Within that each must tread.

On Thursday, March 21st, at 7:30 p. m. in the clubrooms at 1940 Abbott street the Ocean Beach Theosophical club will meet with George Simpson as the speaker on these great ones who have come to set men's feet again on the way.

All who are interested are most welcome and there will be an opportunity for the answering of questions.

The Loman Reporter

The keynote of our current week or so seems to be assemblies of one kind and another: to promote public interest in the National Federal Housing Act; to promote interest in The University of Southern California; to promote interest in the Girl Reserves of Point Loma High school; and to show what our French Department is doing.

The National Housing Act speaker, R. A. Watt presented the matter of the government loans available to the average citizen in a manner both clear and convincing. The pictures of the University of Southern California were better than the average of such pictures with less, perhaps, than the average presentation of a university education as an opportunity to witness or participate in football or belong to a fraternity. It is a relief to see an educational institution advertised as just that. We hope the University of Southern California continues to slant its advertising along educational lines just short of where it will defeat the purpose for which it is intended.

The Girl Reserve stunt on Friday and Monday was a good example of student initiative in extemporizing a better-than-ordinary variety program calculated to allow the various performers to display their several aptitudes. As a cocktail hour idea, it was not particularly suitable to school purposes; as a demonstration of varied abilities of a group of girls training and presenting themselves, it was rather neat, tho in need of polish. The participants were Mary Kearns, Ethel Fried, Faye Emerson, Jeanne Sweet, Joan Wilson, Frances Elum, Jeanne Foelschow, Charlotte Fried, Alyce Vye, Venecia Lyons, Betty Ballinger, Louise Connors, Rosemary Conklin and Katherine Wilson.

The stage design by Phyllis Mirrow, executed by Gene Stephens, was adequate and attractive; the solos by Rosemary Conklin, and Frances Elum, and quartet of Frances Elum, Alyce Vye, Katherine Wilson and Venecia Lyons, the pesterous child by Jeanne Sweet, the French proprietor by Mary Kearns, the irresponsible Tony by Faye Emerson, the gymnastics by Charlotte Fried, the well-gowned accompanist, Jeanne Foelschow, and the obliging magician by Joan Wilson were fun for the participants and fun for the audience.

LOMAN HOLDS MANY RECORDS

(Point Loma Pointer)

We introduce one of Point Loma's champions. Florence Chadwick, has been swimming for competition since she was ten years old. Her first competitive race, which Florence will never forget, was a two and a half mile rough water swim off Hermosa Beach that started at 9 o'clock at night. Each girl was accompanied by a boat with a life guard, a pilot, and a rower. Florence, then only ten years old, was given the best ones.

When she was taken out to the starting line, she almost fell into the water as it was rough and the boat was rocking.

Out of nineteen contestants, Florence came in seventh. She says the swim didn't bother her, but the people frightened her until she cried.

Florence has been swimming unattached, but is now a member of the Los Angeles Athletic club, having been chosen for her fine work. Friday February 22, in Hollywood, she represented L.A.A.C. in back stroke 600 yd. relay for National champions. Her team won in what Florence says was the most important race for her at present.

Florence has swum against many well known swimmers, such as Helen Maddison, Eleanor Holholm. Her ambitions are heading toward the Olympic games to be held in Berlin, Germany. Her best bet for this will be the 220 back stroke in which she is closest to world record time.

Florence holds sixteen records. Three important ones are: Southern California, San Diego County, and Pacific Coast, all won in back stroke free style.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever." These words from Ecclesiastes are the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Substance" on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

A Bible selection in the Lesson-Sermon includes these verses from Luke: "And one of the company said unto him, Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me. And he said unto him, Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you? And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth."

One of the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "How true it is that whatever is learned through material sense must be lost because such so-called knowledge is reversed by the spiritual facts of being in Science. That which material sense calls intangible, is found to be substance. What to material sense seems substance, becomes nothingness, as the sense-dream vanishes and reality appears."

PRAYER WITHOUT PRETENSE

Matthew 6—5-8

5. And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are: for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward. 6. But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly. 7. But when ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking. 8. Be not ye therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him.

"Persistence in Prayer" will be the theme of the sermon of the 10:45 o'clock service next Sunday morning. Prayer is the one means that Christ, our Savior, has given us wherewith to approach our Heavenly Father. We as Christians should make more use of this means.

The Sunday school lesson for this Sunday will be "The Last Supper". That the Lord's Supper shows Jesus' great love for us will be the thought brought out in the various departments.

Special Lenten Service Wednesday

Next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock the third subject, "Jesus Denied," of the series, "Striking Passion Scenes" will be discussed. Are you denying your Savior, Jesus Christ?

FERTILIZER HELPS FISH

Larger and more fish may be produced by using farm fertilizer in lake water. It is reported in connection with tests conducted in Wisconsin. The fish do not eat the phosphorus and lime contained in the fertilizer. The gain in fish, in size and in number, comes by the indirect route of first giving the fertilizer to the marine plants and then letting the fish eat the plants.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

CHAPTER V

Still, something did turn up. Just at breakfast time, while Ben was prowling the mill, admitting to himself that perhaps it was time to look at his hole card—the letter that the old cruiser had sent to him with its intriguing inscription—a stranger behind a light driving team swung into the mill-yard, stopped and tied his horses.

"Well, you had a fire?" he said as Ben approached. "See you've still got a mill standing, though."

"Standing, yes. But that's all you can say for it."

"That's tough!" The man eyed him in genuine concern. "Are you by any chance Ben Elliott?"

"I am."

"Elliott, my name's Blackmore. Glad to see you! I was in here and talked with Harrington week before last and he was saving out some veneer logs for me. I'm with the Veneer Exporting corporation and we're in the market for quite a few cars of stuff. Wonder if I could interest you in a deal. Market's right good and we're in need of some more stuff to fill out a shipment. Maybe with your mill shut down you might be interested."

"That's a close guess. Shoot?"

"I'll pay you a hundred and twenty dollars a thousand for bird's eye maple and ninety dollars for veneer birch; standard specifications and delivery inside of two weeks on, say, thirty thousand. I know you're busy, so I name the top and pass any dickering."

A hundred and twenty. . . . And ninety for birch! Ben's heart leaped but he gave no outward indication of the great relief that surged through him.

"Two weeks?" he asked.

"Yes, and less. Let's see. . . . I'll have to have thirty thousand delivered in just eleven days to be safe in getting 'em to Montreal on time. I'll take fifty thousand at the price but the thirty will have to be loaded and on track first."

"That'll be fast production."

"All of that! But if I can't get the stuff from you I can from Brandon by going up a few dollars a thousand. My cards are on the table, Elliott. Can we deal?"

Ben considered, rubbing his chin with a knuckle. He looked up the road which led toward camp to see a man approaching with that quick, space-deavouring stride of the woodsman.

"Had breakfast?" he asked.

"No."

"Blanket your team and go eat. I'll have an answer for you by the time you're through."

As the veneer buyer entered the boarding house Bird-Eye Blaine—the traveler from camp—had reached the mill-yard.

"For the love of—" he began, turning his amazed stare from the mill to Elliott.

"Yes, a fire, Bird-Eye. Never mind that now. Where'd you get your name?"

"Me name! Say, where does anny man?"

"I mean 'Bird-Eye.' Why do they call you that?"

"Oh, that! Why, I looked veneer stuff from Brandon for years until I got sick with disgust for it!"

"I see. And you've been on the Hoot Owl for three years, haven't you? Know the timber pretty well?"

"I know, every quarter stake by its first name!"

"How much bird's-eye and veneer birch is there within draying distance of the steel? Let's get down to cases. Do you think there's ten thousand? Or fifty?"

"Fifty. Naw! Tin?"—twisting his head. "Twice that, anyhow. 'Nd on twenty-three the' 's another bunch at it. Scattered all through, too, but bunched. Mister Elliott, loike ye don't see it frequent. That makes it easy to git out."

"What I'm getting at is this: With the crew I've got could we get thirty thousand out in ten days?"

Bird-Eye shrugged.

"Damn, b'y, but that's a chore! With this crew av hay tossers?" He shook his head. "Mebby you could. . . you 'nd Paul Bunyan. Most men couldn't even so much as start."

"Wait here. I'll see you in a few minutes."

He entered Buller's house where Able Armitage slipped coffee gloomily, neglecting the food on his plate.

"This is the nineteenth," Ben said. "With what bank balance we have, how much must we get together to meet the payroll, that one note that you think can't be renewed and interest on others, that'll be due? My figures are all up at camp."

Able considered at length.

"Three thousand might let us out. Why?"

He put that question dryly.

"I just wondered." Ben turned to Buller. "How many men will you need to get the mill in shape? I mean, how many can you use and not have them falling over each other?"

"Oh, four or five besides myself."

Ben nodded. "That'll give me fifteen of the mill crew to throw into the woods." His eyes snapped as he looked back at Able. "A half hour ago I was about half licked. I'll make the three thousand by the first or break my neck!"

"What are you getting at, Benny?" Able demanded.

"This." Ben hitched his chair close to the table and with a relish which indicated the love of battle, sketched his plan.

By noon that plan was in partial operation. Bird-Eye Blaine, his duties as barn boss temporarily delegated to another, and Ben Elliott cruised through the timber north of camp, belt axes in their hands. And in the morning the camp crew, augmented by fifteen men from the mill, left off the work of felling timber in strips, scattered through the woods and dropped marked trees. Swampers were with them, clearing the way for teams that followed close on the sawyers' heels and drayed these high quality logs out to the railroad.

Ben Elliott was everywhere. Bird-Eye knew his specialty, he determined, and Ben let the little Irishman go it alone. Without help Blaine could find more veneer trees in a day than the crew could drop and get out to the decking grounds.

"But it's a man's sized job to keep your eye on such an operation!" Ben declared to Able. "I've got to watch Buller and the mill, too. I've got to think about markets so we'll be all set when we commence to saw again. And the devil of it is I'm only one hand and there are only twenty-four hours in a day!" He grinned. "Where's this good man you told me about? Jeffers? Is that his name?"

"Tim Jeffers? Over in the next town! But I doubt he'll even listen. He hasn't wanted a job in three years."

"Doubting isn't knowing," Ben said grimly and the next afternoon drove hard for Jeffers' little farm clearing.

The old logger met Elliott with an eye that seemed at first to be hostile but which on closer observation proved to be only one of severe appraisal.

"So you're after a camp foreman," he said. "No, I've quit the timber for good, Elliott. I'm through. A man has trouble enough without hunting it. I'm not a young man, son. I've no years nor strength any more to put into another man's losing fight."

"We won't lose. Brandon's tried everything up to and including fire and he hasn't got me licked yet. Come along with me, Tim Jeffers, and we'll run him into his hole!"

But the man was obdurate and Ben left him, chagrined and a bit angered at his failure.

"Brandon's got a crimp in the whole country," he muttered as he drove on toward camp. "And here I am, trying to do four men's work. Tough nut! I'll tell the world!"

In Tincup he drove to the express office to inquire for the new piston head for the locomotive which was due. He wanted to start loading his veneer logs and getting them out to the siding as rapidly as they came from the woods. He had signed a contract with the time for delivery specified and wanted to run no chance of delay.

But the repair part was not there.

"Got the bill of it," the station agent said. "But it hasn't shown up. Ought to be along tomorrow."

However, the next day did not bring the repairs and the driver of Ben's supply team reported the fact to him.

"And the agent, he wants to see you," the man added enigmatically.

"Didn't that piston head come yet?" Ben demanded angrily of the supply teamster after the man's next trip to town.

"I told you the agent wanted to see you."

The other's manner was doggedly mysterious and Elliott, without further questioning, harnessed and drove to Tincup.

The agent shook hands cordially and drew him inside the tiny ticket office. He spoke in a cautious tone, although they were alone.

"The messenger on the train says he put that engine part off for me the night the bill came through. It ain't here and I'm takin' a chance of losing my job just telling you even that much."

Ben frowned.

"What are you driving at? It's not here and you'll lose— You mean, the express company'll hold you responsible for an article lost out of the depot?"

"That don't worry me. The shipment came in and I never saw it and if I was to tell you that the only thing that could've happened was that it was taken off the truck while I was handling baggage it wouldn't be a bad guess. But if certain parties knew I told you that much the railroad would get such a complaint about me that I'd be out of a job between days and don't you forget it!"

"Oh, I see," Ben looked at a calendar. "It took them five days to get it back to me. Can't wait that long. Give me a telegraph blank. I'll have 'em notify me by wire when they ship and if I have to meet trains myself. . . . why, I can do that, too."

The other nodded and gave Ben a worried look.

"I sort of liked the way you did up Duval in that log rollin', and I heard about the trimmin' you gave him at camp. And I'm. . . . Well, I've seen enough raw stuff go on around this man's town to feed me up. I'll help you all I can but I've got kids to think about."

Ben made a wry face.

"Even children don't seem safe," he said. "Some of us have got only our dander invested in the particular fracas I'm mixing in, but everything the little McManus girl has got is at stake."

"Up. You're— Little girl?"

"Yes, The McManus girl. She owns the Hoot Owl."

"Oh," the agent said with a queer look.

The following morning, a half hour after the men had gone to the woods, a sawyer came running toward the camp office just in time to catch Ben before he left for the mill.

"Hi, Elliott!" he called. "Hold on a minute!"

He came breathlessly up to the sleigh.

"Somebody cut three inches off the measures last night. Thought you ought to know. Logs three inches short might be thrown out."

"Somebody cut— How'd you find that out?"

"Well, we left the measuring stick layin' on a tree we'd dropped last night. I'd marked it myself, figurin' on making one more log before we quit and then we decided not to. It showed just a mite durin' the night. I laid the measure down again this morning and made another mark, forgetting about the first which was covered up with snow, you see. When I marked, it knocked the snow off the log, showing up my first one three inches off. I thought that was funny so I measured again. Somethin' was wrong, sure. We looked her over and found where a piece had been cut off the stick and then we saw where tracks—"

"Be with you pronto," Ben muttered as he turned his team back toward the barn.

He found five of the saw gangs with shortened measures. Fortunately, the discovery was made early in the day and only a few under-length logs had been made. However, it proved to Ben that menacing influences struck in unexpected ways and from all quarters. An unexplained snowshoe trail was found which led in from the north and none knew who had made it. The visitor evidently had gone out by road in the dead of night.

"Seems to me," Bird-Eye said that night, "that I heard 'bout two fellas trappin' over ferlinst Squaw lake. Might be they ain't trappers a-tall, a-tall!"

Shortly after dinner on the following day Ben Elliott set out to investigate this story of a trappers' camp on Squaw lake, which lay to the northward of Hoot Owl.

Things were going swimmingly on the job. He was a bit ahead even of the stiff schedule of production he had set for himself and if the weather held reasonably good and he could frustrate these attempts to slow him up, he would turn the trick which engaged him for the present.

It was a good six miles to Squaw lake but he did not follow the most direct route. Swung right and left now and then, smiling when he came on a particularly fine piece of timber. Certainly, the Hoot Owl stuff looked better every time he went through it. Money standing on end for an orphan girl if he, Ben Elliott, should be strong enough to outlast Nicholas Brandon's ruthlessness and persistence! He wondered about Dawn McManus, known and marked as the daughter of a murderer. Tough, he told himself, for a child to grow up under a cloud like that.

He started back after a fruitless investigation, and had not gone more than half-way to camp when he came suddenly upon a fresh snowshoe trail. He stopped short with a little thrill. Another prowler? The one who had shortened his measures yesterday? The tracks were only moments old, he knew by the way the freshly falling snow lay in them.

He took the trail at a swift walk.

came on a place where the one he followed had stopped and stood a moment, turned around and then resumed his way.

Ben went faster, breaking into a jog trot where the going was good. A half hour later he saw the moving figure before him. Ben saw him turn about, looking upward, stare into the wind which blew from the northwest and swing and go with it. Not completely lost, as a greenhorn might be; nor floundering in panic and traveling meaningless circles, but still far from certain in directions.

Ben felt a tightening in his throat. This, the chances were, would be an encounter with one of the men who, most certainly acting on Brandon's orders, sought to hamper and hamstring him. A savage anticipation ran his veins with that; to meet this prowler would be a greater satisfaction, even, than throwing Bull Duval out of his camp had been.

Elliott pushed on, moving faster than the other, cutting down the distance between them as the thickening gloom made it impossible for him to see clearly at any distance.

The man before him stopped suddenly and faced about. Elliott hesitated, wondering whether he had been seen or not. If not, he wanted to trail secretly; if so—

He had no doubt, now, that he had been seen, so he went forward resolutely, intent on meeting the wanderer with challenge.

He dipped into a sharp ravine, climbed the other slope. . . and came face to face with the most lovely girl he could then or afterward remember having seen in his life.

Great brown eyes looked at him. The nose was small, aristocratic; the mouth red lipped, mobile, he imagined, but now it was set rather grimly into an expression of extreme petulance.

He did not register consciously the knitted frown of soft maroon wool, nor the well-tailored jumper and knickers. Impressions leaped at him in ensemble, rather than detail: a trim, trig, competent little figure.

"Oh!" he said, when she did not speak. "Oh. . . . Why, hello!"

He grinned, then, but no responsive smile changed the girl's face or even lighted her eyes.

"Good afternoon," she said brusquely, almost sharply.

Sparrow Hawk, Smallest, Family's Most Beautiful

During late fall and winter field and house mice form the main diet of the Sparrow Hawk, the smallest and most beautiful of our hawk family, according to a writer in the Missouri Farmer. Exceedingly brave and aggressive, it will sit in a nearby tree while the farmer shucks corn out of the shock or when he is hauling fodder out of the field, watching for mice which run out of the shock.

This hawk has an amazing sense of sight; with a graceful swoop, he catches a mouse on the run that is scurrying away from a corn shock, having seen his prey emerge from the shock from his vantage point many yards distant. His skill and his value to the farmer can best be noted when snow is on the ground; his food supply is then low and he is braver than usual. At such a time he will catch mice very near the farmer who is working at the corn shock.

Occasionally the sparrow hawk attacks small birds and chickens. These depredations usually occur during the nesting period or when other food is scarce, but these irregularities are so infrequent that they are more than outweighed by its good services in destroying mice and insects.

Foods Contain Water

All foods contain water. The driest bread or biscuit may contain 5 to 10 per cent water, and some fruits and vegetables, like tomatoes, melons, lettuce, cauliflower and strawberries, may contain as much as 90 per cent.

World's Oldest Fossil

Egg Found in America

Credit for producing the world's oldest fossil egg, which until recently has been accorded Asia because of a one-hundred-million-year-old dinosaur egg found in the Gobi desert, has been transferred to America with the discovery of a fossil egg believed to be about two hundred and twenty-five million years old, in the Permian Red Beds of North Central Texas. The find was made by members of an expedition from the Harvard University Museum of Comparative Zoology led by Theodore White and Llewellyn Price, and is now on display in the museum.

The unhatched egg, which has been preserved with little distortion, though it shows a few slight cracks. Is about three inches long and rusty in coloring. Scientists are not sure what manner of creature was responsible for it, but it is believed to have been laid by a large lizard like animal known as ophiacodon. A partial skeleton of one of these creatures has been found in the region in which the egg was discovered. It has a disproportionately large head and short limbs, and measures about six feet from snout to tip of tail.

This "kitchen ensemble" would make a delightful present for some member of your family—that is, if you don't decide to keep it yourself, after it is finished. The apron, made especially to fit the frock, is cut amply full for protection, and boasts a convenient patch pocket and slenderizing half-belted waistline. The frock has a disarmingly demure ruffle to emphasize its nice square neckline, and cunning puffed sleeves to set off pretty arms. Vertical tucks at the waistline keep it trim, yet provide comfortable fullness in bodice and skirt. Both the apron and the frock are included in one pattern.

Pattern 9846 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 4 3/4 yards 36-inch fabric and 3/4 yards contrasting.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included. Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighth Street, New York.

Winter Slumber Time for Trees and Plants

The trees go to sleep for the winter. All the perennial plants take their long rest. Almost the only thing that continues to grow is the winter wheat. Give that a day or two of sunshine and it sends forth new sprouts. And the dandelion, even in the midst of winter, needs but a bit of encouragement to open its buds.

Not until late February does the sap begin to flow and the trees awake from their slumber. It is marvelous how they accommodate themselves to the vicissitudes of our climate. But more marvelous is how the birds who do not go south for the winter manage to live. All of them find shelters where, in the extremity of weather, they seek refuge and with inexhaustible vitality wear out the storm.

In heavy snow the quail will huddle together under a pile of brush and be warm and comfortable. The cardinals love thick shrubbery or matted vines. The squirrels find safe homes in the hollows of the trees, which they often share with the little hoot owls. The rabbits go abroad at all seasons. The summer traveler in the far north can tell the depth of the snow the previous winter by observing the height at which the rabbits have nibbled off the tops of the young trees. The tiny field mice in their burrows manage nicely, but they have taken kindly to the ways of civilization, and when the first frosts come they swarm into the farmers' barns and stables. All of them, without exception, birds and beasts, put on a heavier coating for the winter.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

CLASPILLS ENJOY MOUNTAIN AND DESERT TOUR

Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Claspill and three sons, accompanied by I. J.'s mother, Adah R. Claspill of San Diego, left Sunday morning for a very pleasant day's automobile trip into mountains and desert.

Leaving about 7 a. m. they went out via Lakeside, Ramona, Julian and down the Kane Springs road to Imperial valley, then north thru Coschilla, Indio and up again thru Idyllwild and back thru Fallbrook and home by the inland route.

This day's outing is recommended by the Claspills for variety, scenery, and for the general formation of an idea of the many wonders one may encounter in California. Leaving San Diego the travelers motors thru orange and lemon groves, vegetable gardens and shade trees, farther along coming to cattle grazing country and chicken raising in the Ramona and Julian districts, in the latter place there being considerable snow, then dropping down below sea level into the Imperial valley one finds the early harvest of spring vegetables in full swing, on north the desert has blossomed and corn is tall in the rows, cantaloupe vines are ready to bloom and the date farms offer you their sweet meaty fruits from black tents along the highway, much as if you were in Arabia or other southern clime. From Palm Springs the party went up over the San Georgino mountains where snow was again seen by the highway, though did not interfere with travel, thence down by way of Hemet, Murietta hot springs and the highway to Fallbrook, Escondido and home.

The Mission Circle of the Baptist church will hold their monthly meeting in the church parlor Friday of this week at 2 p. m. An interesting program will be presented, and all members are urged to attend.

B. F. Green of Tucson, Arizona, is now living at 4844 Santa Monica avenue, coming here for his health. Mr. Green has been in Ocean Beach previously for summer vacations and enjoys the climate of this section very much.

Mrs. M. Powles and son Marvin left last evening to join Mr. Powles in San Francisco in which section they now intend to make their home. Mrs. Powles during her spare time has solicited subscriptions for The Ocean Beach News and made many friends here.
